In Memoriam

"So you'll live, you'll live, Young Fellow My Lad,
In the gleam of the evening star,
In the wood-note wild and the laugh of the child,
In all sweet things that are.
And you'll never die, my wonderful boy,
While life is noble and true;
For all our beauty and hope and joy
We will owe to our lads like you."

Next Stop Missoula

Eager frosh get a first fleeting glimpse of the ivy-covered halls of learning before the NP pulls into the station. Know-it-all upperclassmen line the platform to give the new crop of Grizzly cubs a once over. Somewhat awed by the display of upperclass sophistication, Bill Sethre, Vern Hamre, Marilyn Arnold, and Kay Morris smile tentatively; and lug bag and baggage to the waiting University bus.

On up fraternity row excited frosh take it all in as 500 club smoothies and DG chicks bask in the fall sunlight and exchange chit-chat.

An informal AWS madhouse mixes frosh and upperclasswomen with a scrambled evening of games and introductions. In calmer moments the girls listen to Janice Johnson and her violin while faculty notables form an impressive backdrop on the platform.

Jerri Latimer holds the door for a sun-soaked taxi driver and prepares to strike her dorm in North Hall. Inside the halls are a better-skilled house-podge of opened trunks and scattered feminine apparel.

Across the street AFDH leads the walk to whistle at nooning North Hall belles and line up prospective date material. Aooooooowowow!

Frosh Week

"Now in the middle group are the big nerves" — Dean Jesse explains the grade curve to the frosh during their week assembly, while "Woody" asks an Law Hunter takes over as the political speaker attempting to follow under out of doors in first temporary classroom. And AFDH officers give frosh the glad word of welcome.

President and Mrs. Melby await their turn in the slow line as faculty and students mingle at the freshman picnic. No tests, Dr. and Mrs. Jesse, Dr. and Mrs. Merriam, and Mrs. Ferguson smile benevolently.

Nurse Thibideau and Sergeant Eubanks do an imitation of the old army routine as fresh representatives of the stranger sex post-pose the yards of physical exams. Fresh practice penmanship to fill out the traditionally lengthy registration forms, dash hither and thither for necessary faculty autographs and consultations, and eventually complete the rigmarole of enrollment!

Shirley Kay Savage, Donna Fanning, and Mary Agnes Kelly with woebegone faces make physical check-up appointments. Fresh march circles, odd two and two, straddle through delicious and exercise with an aptitude record to be filed in the secret archives.

Chicks of the class of '49 laugh up their sleeves at the manpower shortage. Jean Beasire and John Rolison talk it over; one of the Phillips twins prefers his dancing silent. Ruth Whitesitt laughs over a khaki-clad ASTRP shoulder. Virgil Bade and friend trip a solemn fantastic at the freshmen mixer.

It's a long trek up, and sports along the way least worth of encouragement to green legs and lasses who make tumble-downs to MNU tradition and trudge up the slopes of Sentinel to refurbish the M.

"On your left, Vories and gentlemen. Now Hark! home of suspicious deeds." The fresh take of Cosh's tour of the campus, quoted by J. W. Severy.

The file moves up and one more student jays on the dotted line for various board and room and so on, etc.

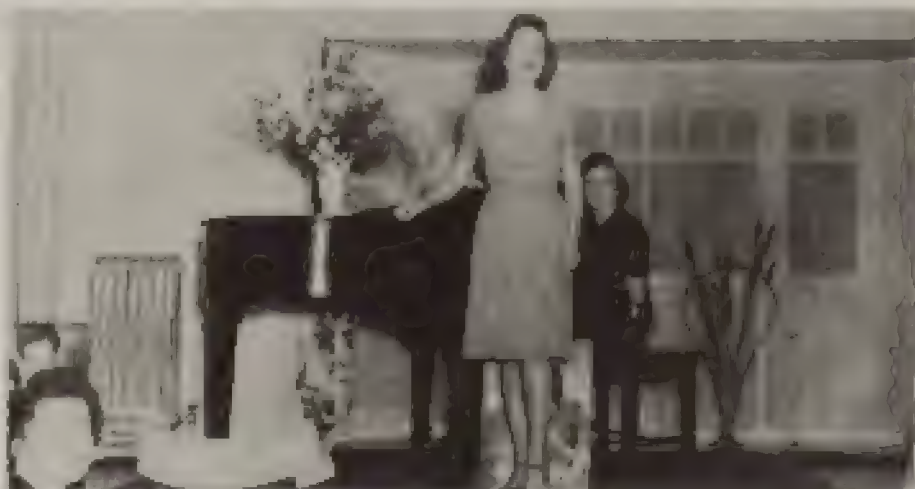

"My dear! So glad to see you." Jeep Phant, Pan-Hellenic president, beams as a grande dame at the Mortar Board tea for the freshmen women. Rudy Sackett assists Mrs. Clark and Mrs. Gordon at the tea table.

The Greeks wear themselves to a frazzle dazzling prospective pledges and creating an aura of camaraderie and good fellowship. Rushes dash from function to function, worry about impressions and the big decision. Sigma Kappa's Maile Munix and Jean Gillette carry on gay chatter on a cocktail lounge set. Theta Chi's Harriet Dillavou plays a gracious hostess, with Ivy. Alpha Phi Martha Gasser warbles a golden note. Kappa Sue Smart, Delta's Larsen and Frances Leuphart charm rushes. DG Curtin Olsen plays cigarette girl to pin a rose on sister Jane Kinkade.

lets call on the Administration

The faculty latch string hangs out. Friendly student-faculty relations get off to a flying start fall quarter as President Ernest O. Melby and ASMSU proxy Lew Burdick exchange warm handshakes. Vice President Loraine MacKenzie looks on while Business Manager Jeannette Bakke and Secretary Sue Smartt converse happily behind the president's desk.

Lieutenant Armon Glenn, ex-assistant to the registrar, revisits old friends and drops in on Mrs. Lucille Armstrong, the president's secretary. Jean Meyers and Anne Sumner take five.

Les Marquetts and Dean R. H. Jesse discuss internships in one of the dean of faculty's "open" hours in his office.

Dean of Men J. Earl (Burly) Miller and Secretary Ruth Greiner ignore "fan mail" to make fun at the cameraman.

Dean of Women Mary Elrod Ferguson and Secretary Betty LaRue discuss knotty problems of anxious women and teach after freshman women trussed once again in the dorms.

Dr. Katherine Nutterville, student counselor, leads women at institute to iron out the wrinkles in Jean Peterson's campus life.

Captain Bill Oeder leaves the dean's office after reminiscing about the "good old days" with Betty LaRue.

Problem-ridden students and trembling miscreants pour into the new pastel-hued deans' offices for consultation or carpet calls.

Student organizations seek the seal of approval on campus affairs from Burly Miller and Dean Ferguson. Burly serves as connecting link between MSU men in the service and current campus doings. Faculty members centralize their problems with Dean Jesse.

University notices, tests, and communications eventually find their way to the clerical service. Mrs. Kathleen Schneider, director, oversees the work of typists Jean Stron and Muriel McDonald.

I. B. Speer. University registrar meets the prospective students—through letters—before they ever arrive on the campus. Spends most of his time computing University fiscal figures, and preparing an annual budget. Jean Gordon Gillette does the paper work.

Tuition, fees, board, room, and fines go on the books as routine finances pass through the hands of office girls Marabell Stein, Una May Aron, and Cheryl Randall.

Kirk Badgley. University auditor separates duty from the student union to the business office to the men's gym and back again in his station as power behind the scenes.

Hendietta Wilhelm's "middle" women behind the scenes check and recheck checks, student loans and requirements, verify strong transcripts of delinquencies, smooth out academic conflicts. Lieutenant Harold Scott presents the honor M. V. McMillan at the student store. McMillan's story at student body meeting showed that student is well trained in guarding the store when and how when Extraordinary McMillan served on this board and that.

Central Board is the largest and best staff of women in ASMU movement. Twenty officers and the women polished the boys' meet and thrust out student government policies and demands under the gentle guidance of Chief Executive Lew Rudick. Once a year the board brings itself to a grand banquet and welcomes new blood. Class representatives are named for their college year, a new representative joins the board each year, and class representatives numbering three Executive officers are chosen each year.

Kirk Badgley, Bill Fiedler, Jeannette Bakke, Ethel Kingsford, and Dr. Gordon B. Castle at Baker and Fiedler made ASMU insure to provide the gravity of student body team between the newly University activities. Lucille Rohoff (not pictured).

Promotion of "something to do" is the duty of the Activity Committee. Big event this year was the production of skating pond behind the Student Union. Members are Arnold Berger, Maryann White, Jean Kaur, and Margarette Wagnild.

Problems on 4-F rulings and participation of former service men in University activities added many a new wrinkle and they turn to an already conditioned Athletic Board. The sports schedule was long, impressive, but the old campus must be readjusted again. Board members, from now left to right—Don Smart, Lew Hardick, Lawrence Baker, Earl Miller, Dick Snodgrass, Marvin Foster, Andrew Cogswell, missing—John Lacy, Marcus Daly, Earl (Burt) Miller, Don Ryan.

Part of the freshman orientation to the campus during fresh week is the annual "M" week devoted to each student. Full of other regulations, traditions and other fun, the week leads to completion as a few passed what most of us have that year in March. Those responsible for its contents were Elaine Hausted and Tammie Brown.

With fraternally activities (showing some) shown in unobtrusively sport games created a fine among task. The Main Board must looked to terminate new faces with a business and security, and then a humor. Members are Lew Hardick, Vincent Wilson, and Dick Snodgrass.

Outside Entertainment Committee does its best to bring in professionals and the community interest about. Members include: Dean John Crowder, Stewart Brandberg, Beverly Press, Pauline Schneider, and Dr. E. E. Bennett (absent).

Good feelings, presentation at tea held to the public on University life, and stronger relations between the students and the people of the state are fostered by the Public Relations Committee. Kathleen Hubbard, Betty Kennell, and Catherine Cowell. Not pictured are Eileen Plunk and Marie Murphy.

"Hello" walk, senior bench, S.O.S., and other traditions live under the guidance of Traditions Board: Lester Margotta, Jeannette Hakke and Harriet McDevitt.

Contributions to the World Student Service Fund are collected by members of the War Activities Committee which also sponsors student interest in vital war work. Members are Mary Morrow and Margette Floyd. Missing: Lorraine Griffith, Frank Conover, Anne Jo Kelley and Donald Greaves.

Social Committee members Rita Jones, Anna Mae Martin, Betty Chamber, Betty Bailey, and Louise Mae Kenne stopped out this year's social calendar around on Whisper activities that have themselves in a pre dominance of the winter sex.

Convos got hit in it and just out and moving to the new executive committee student talent found its way on the winter and spring programs. Students who discussed the pros and cons of some winter program were from row, left to right: Betty Kenne, Mable Perkins, Jack and Louise Repley, Edward Brundage, Lisa Hart, and Helen Garrow.

Whether you put your feet on the orange furniture at rest as rest one of the major problems faced by the Student Union Executive Committee as it attempts to keep the student union, student meetings, music, and dance running smoothly. Those concerned are Paul Barrett, Betty Kenne, E. W. Briggs, Robert Meier, Jack and Louise Repley, Edward Brundage, T. B. Sweetman, and Myrtle Van Dusen. Members: Kirk Repley, Helen Garrow, Virginia Foster, Elmer Felt, Charles Jackson.

Amateur Nite

"The Trolley Song" was given a sprightly lift when Kathryn Thompson Brown and Helen Sugrue donned aprons to walk off with a first prize $25 war bond.

Merlar Board, a full dozen top-notch senior women, sponsored this year's nite to introduce fresh, new talent to the campus, and make money for its year's activities.

Exceptional piano technique put Miss Helen Alpha Phi, in the judges' favor for second place.

Approximately sixty persons participated in the evening's program. Talented entertainers from the ASTRP, sororities, and independent groups tapped, sang, did impersonations, for the audience's benefit and for a try at the big prizes—$25, $10 and $5 in war bonds and stamps.

Negro mammy Willa Marie LaVelle and peppy Kathryn Virginia Skinner teamed up to medley "Kentucky Home" with "Swing Time."

Sadie Hawkins

"You gotta get checked before you go in." A sharp-eyed door committee see about who's taking who.

"Sadie Hawkins Dory!" Feared words for male-doms. But sweet to female ears on a man-short campus. In true style, laid out by Spur rules, the gals chased their L'il Abners, nailed them down, and pinned on the fatal dog-tag.

Confident, smiling Daisy Mae lead their men off--

Prizewinners "Daisy Mae" Bette Campbell and "L'il Abner" John Bora pose in front of the odder place--

The Dogpatch rat-race got going with a bang; things were kept awfully hot.

Low Burdick just couldn't hold it home without his pin

Papa Is All

Producer Eddie Hearn, seated under his own, white star and surrounded by some of the great work and production involved in making "Papa Is All" is shown. He just lived an unusual plot full of difficult circumstances with a personal touch.

Mama (Eileen Plumb) and Papa Aukamp (Walter King) posed before the camera, given in this story at home, country side of the Pennsylvania Dutch nation.

Margaret Duncan helps Walter King apply that famous beauty to make the black heart of Papa.

A. C. Hartpence makes a low business up lighting effects, and to give the scene light.

Meanwhile, the scene grew more and more as powder, film and glassware in the Aukamp kitchen, before a scene and which, somewhat, makes the scene.

... And the crowd meantime to give us, right up all the scenes, and.

Though unconcerned about Papa's death, Miss Ankney still bears the constant strain. Smart look acquired through years of living under the same roof with an over-ambitious husband. She hatched up an elaborate ruse as one of those "new inventions".

The cause is all the worse—Papa Ankney, whose cruel "hard-boiled" soul made Hitler look like a sissy

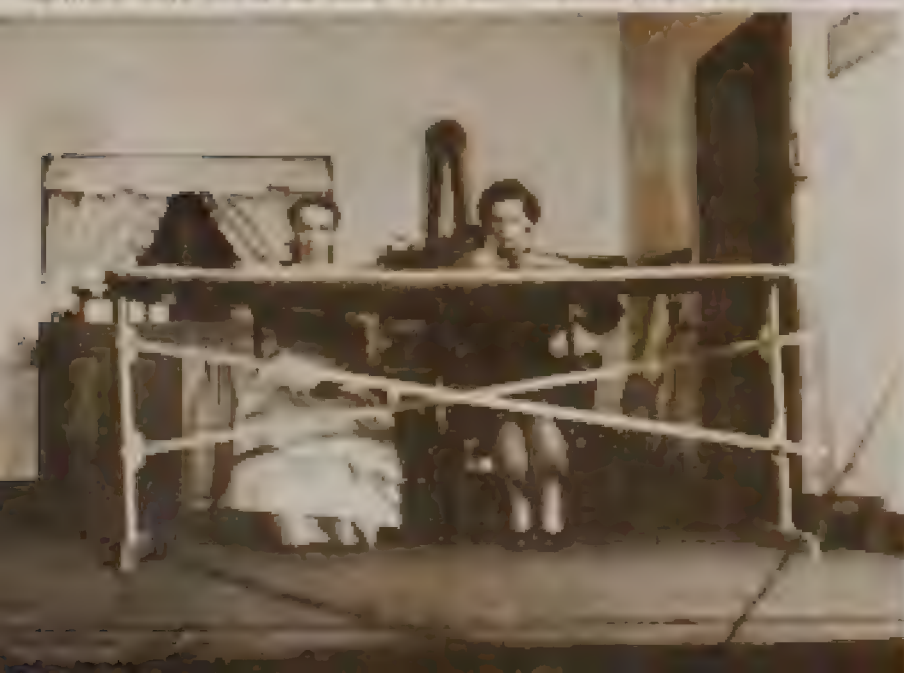

Jake (Roger Barton) and Emma (Helen Gillespie) just before Papa's death as he let Emma out of the house for one night's fun.

"Yah, shore, I sure will every young girl around here ought to" says proud beauty cousin Mrs. Yoder (Elena Strand).

"Idleness is the devil's workshop," papa would—and thereby gets twice as much work out of his own wife and neighbor Mrs. Yoder, too.

With papa out of the way, Dike knew he had more to control in town. Dike's old house, formerly cotton gin.

With papa some funny story a new telephone. Emma sends it over from to meet her "surveyor" in and Mrs. Yoder sits by fascinated in his new turn of events.

Suspicious over papa's sudden "death" Officer Brendle (Arthur Jacobson) questions like on a few details.

Emma gets a lecturing on the evils of smoking and all sorts of things from a lady friend. Emma's friend, Mrs. Yoder, lies out the door.

Papa defies him with the money. The law, Officer Brendle, has him off to jail for admitting the wrong "surveyor". Emma's reputation holds up beautifully in some of this.

Encores. The Ankamp, Mrs. Yoder, and Officer Brendle receive in the finale the audience's hearty applause.

Grand old Main Hall reflected the glory of a Christmas eve—the first in three years. Weary students huddling to 8 o'clocks were cheered by the colored lights in these most dark mornings, eagerly anticipated the coming holidays. Christmas S.O.S. with the lighted tree brought back pleasant memories to senior women.

Christmas Week

The Kappas thrill once again to the sound of music notes as the "500" took across the records in a Christmas extravaganza.

Alpha Phi's brave cold winds to bring their wishes for "Joy to the World".

Doll Dance was danced by Joyce Shene who jumped out of a Christmas box and begged to be "sold for some little girl's Christmas".

Flanked by white candles on either side, Beverly Bross impressively sang "Canto de Noel" at the Christmas convocation.

From a huge window gay Christmas revelers sing carols to a convocation and then congregate happily around a tree.

Christmas dance in the Gold Room topped off the fall quarter social and before students left for home.

Athletically-minded women enjoyed a warm Christmas fireside in the Student Union lounge over warm punch, a warm fire, and warm friendships.

The Messiah

"Behold, a Virgin shall Conceive . . ." Solist: John Lester sings the prophetic words to the greatest story ever told, the Christmas message.

In front of a backdrop of angels the four soloists gathered after the performance: Vernon Haire, tenor; Beverly Pitts, soprano; Janet Brazelton, mezzo-soprano; and John Lester, baritone.

"For Unto Us a Child is Born . . ." And a peaceful picture of the Virgin Mother and Child furnishes the sacred setting for Handel's "Messiah" given by the chorus.

College of Arts and Sciences

Student registration cards get a thorough going-over by J. B. Speer, registrar, and Dean R. H. Jesse, dean of the College of Arts and Sciences. From their smiles, it mustn't be so tough after all.

For the undecided student entering the University there is salvation in the College of Arts and Sciences. By their very nature, the courses offered lead the way toward greater study in some special field, uncover hidden talents, and develop new interests. By his junior year, the student has gone a long way toward choosing a major course of study. For the student already decided upon a course of action, the division studies offer him special training in his own field and an added liberal education. Majors in the seven other schools can receive interesting background material toward a better-rounded education.

Each of the four divisions—biological sciences, humanities, physical sciences, and social sciences—cover a wide scope of studies. Botany, medical technology, bacteriology, physical education, classical languages, English, dramatics, fine arts, modern languages, chemistry, geology, home economics, physics, premedical course, economics, sociology, history are but a few of the fields open. Extra-curricular activities in these departments tend to promote greater loyalty among the students and to create wider interests in these chosen fields.

Dean R. H. Jesse, overseer of the four divisions, keeps the parts running smoothly.

The old rabbit and bat trick, this time in the bacteriology lab. Al Wilkinson and Al Swenberg manhandle experimental white rabbits. Robbie Benz, Elizabeth Spruill, and Peggy Lee watch; Dr. Herter looks a trifle skeptical; seniors Connie Scoyen and Tom Dully turn their attention elsewhere.

Heads of the Divisions

J. Earl Miller, head of the division of social sciences, is known for his English history. He specializes through his discussions with one of his collectives of poems, stories and his own, accounts reflectively at the telling. Early doesn't lecture to his classes, just talks and history comes to life. Under his direction is all economic sociology, history, political science, prehistoric civilization, preproduction, and prelegal.

Head of the division of humanities, Dr. H. G. Merrett recently found on his points of the titled new humanities building. His specialty is creative writing and is editor of the new extract "Frontier," has passed comment on first drafts of some of the best stories in contemporary fiction. Surayan - the famous, creative Johnson of the Saturday Evening Post branch, Surayan started as a former student of his. He supervises classical languages, English, speech, direction, fine arts, modern literature courses, is wellversed in almost every field. In the background is a picture of Lincoln College, Oxford, which he attended, also the seal of Lincoln College and two seals of Oxford University.

Dr. A. S. Merrill this year has a chance to catch his breath after last year's double duty as chairman for the STD program and head of the division of physical science. Even catching his breath he's still one of the busiest men on the campus. Chemistry, geology, home economics, mathematics, physics, and premedical sciences are all his field.

Dr. J. W. Severy presides over the division of biological sciences; serves Masters on various and sundry wildlife commissions. He works side by side with his students working in a shopping lab coat and waves enthusiastically over nature's wonders and wonders. His courses are medical technology, nursing education, with the technology in technology, hygiene, history, physical education, psychology, philosophy, and zoology.

Dean James L. C. Ford

When Dean James L. C. Ford felt the need to move back home, he left his Minnesota green pastures. He began playing away his Ph. D. at the University here. The comfortable chair in the spacious school central office was only filled by loved Acting Dean Andrew C. Cogswell. Andy to one and all.

Theta Sigma Phi

Theta Sigma Phi really had something to smile about this year, after putting over the traditional Matrix Tangle banquet. Honored guest Mrs. Mildred Walker Schuman came from Great Falls to tell what it's like to be a married mother. Campus women got a chance to see how it's done. Spurs. Back row, left to right: Thelma Brown, Katherine Spacht, Lynda Monax, Marjorie Oliver, Pat Murphy; third row: Lee Bellman, Peg Coates, Marjorie Gannon, Marion Gilman, Lillian Wadum, Dorothy Henry; second row: Rosemary Westphal, Jean Peterson, Jo Ann West, Marion Hootley, Marion Lykken; first row: Jane Selva, Marjorie Floyd, Mary Morrow, Lois Hart, and Lois Sanders. Advisor Mrs. Paul Finkhoff is not pictured.

Typical, loyal college spirit is the essence of Toman-of-Spur activities. Honored Sophomore girls early took over ushering at games, convocations; conducted an MSU radio survey for Grant Redford; ate monthly lunches in the Student Union with past Spur groups; sold night lunches in living centers; and generally kept busy at school affairs.

The local chapter entertained the Roseman Spurs at a noon luncheon, Saturday of the last Roseman-University basketball series.

Lillian Wadum and Jean Peterson sold war stamps to Dick Boone in the student store. Houses competed in sales to raise the war security.

A day with the A.S.T.R.P

Major George W. Misavle, infantry commander, pushed the ASTEP business through a successful period before Uncle Sam sent them on to Stenard.

Military Coordinator A. S. Merrill helped the gap between military exercises and academic studies for the program. Details for credits, study and management were worked out with Mrs. Emma Lemmensen's help.

Lieutenant Richard S. Brennen and Secretary Emma Kelson check some papers, reviewing personnel and transportation.

Captain Robert Isaac, commandant of the business, dispatches in order for supplies.

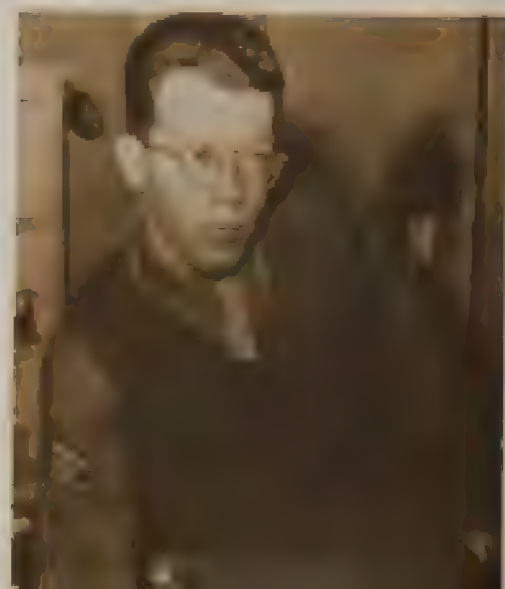

Rifle mechanism gets the answer by Staff Sergeant Frank J. Bensch and Student Wiley Davis.

Corporal Carl Zur Muehlen takes his duties in the personnel office seriously.

Sergeant Major Bernie L. Eubanks, the man behind the movie projector, flashes a characteristic smile.

Personnel problems of the program were through the hands of Sergeant Charles A. Smith, too.

Reweville

Home was never like this. Gallagher and Bejesault find it out.

Who could ever study, anyway, with a bull session going on? . . . A bull session—legalized.

Edwards on guard.

South Hall blacked out; peace settles for the night.

They arrived—Recruits—School of the soldier. The fundamentals are learned early.

In uniform now, trainees learn the manner of arms.

Concentration, the army sees that you have it.

Tenting tonight. What does she do when it rains?

Posting the guard—interior guard duty.

It's not as easy as you think. Future marksmen try for the bullseye

Ray Smith—extended order.

First Sergeant Elmer Davis uses the sighting bar along over the shoulder of Corporal Joe Daugherty.

Hayes, Tomlin, and J. Jacobs clean up after an afternoon's session.

One guard takes up where the other leaves off. Sergeant J. Stunek looks on.

Trainees at attention, ready for Sunday inspection.

Geology

Dr. Charles Deiss on leave of absence from the University since summer, 1942, has been working in the U. S. Geological Survey on structural and minerals in every state in the west, assisted by George Erickson, ex-'43. Fall and winter quarters Dr. Deiss and George have been on campus formally reporting their field work. Dr. Wayne Lowell has taken over in the geology department in Dr. Deiss' absence.

Debate and Radio

... Redford directs.

The University Hour, designed to answer the question, "What is the University doing?", has been heard on weekly half-hour programs over six Montana stations: KGVO, Missoula; KGEZ, Kalispell; KTBB, Great Falls; KGCX, Sidney; KRIF, Miles City; and KGHL, Billings.

Under the direction of Grant H. Redford many students and nearly every faculty member has been heard. Until his illness, the late A. L. Stone, Dean Emeritus of the School of Journalism, was featured each week, telling a "Montana Story." A. J. Mosby and J. A. Barber of KGVO have made the series possible by transcribing the programs and giving helpful advice. A. C. Hartpence, announcer, replaces Bob Johnson, who began the series, while Allen Lewis operates the control booth. Mrs. DeLoss Smith, organist, provides musical background.

Debaters: Sinclair, Draushter, McCormick, Sautz and Stadstad.

Using informal discussion instead of stereotyped forensic technique, the Debate Club this year discussed two questions; Resolved, "That the Legal Voting Age be Reduced to Eighteen Years of Age" and "Montana Should Support a Missouri Valley Authority." Two squads of five members each discussed the voting question before eleven high schools: Deer Lodge, Butte, Anaconda, Philipsburg, Missoula, St. Ignatius, Bonan, Polson, Kalispell, Whitefish, and the Missoula Sacred Heart Academy. Because of state wide interest concerning the proposed M.V.A., the debaters made use of their extensive study of the problem in meetings with the Stevensville Farmers' Union, the Hamilton Grange, and Farmers' Union and local civic organizations. Roundtable discussion and audience participation proved effective in acquainting the listeners with facts and problems involved.

School of Religion (Affiliated)

Students attempt to reach a common ground of understanding during one of its workshop discussions on religion. Rev. Harvey Baty explains a point to quizzical George Theisen. Leona Lampi, Frances Sanders, and Betty Chandler listen attentively.

An inspiring Inter-Church Rally was conducted in January among Protestant groups. L. to r. are Rev. Baty; Rev. S. C. Eastvold, President of Pacific Lutheran College, who addressed the meeting; Curtis Stedstad, President of Lutheran Student Association; Prof. Roy J. W. Ely; and Nadine Olson.

Father Plummer, Newman Club chaplain. Catholic students cooperate in religious work, but are not officially part of the school.

Food was a sidelight at the rally, but the kitchen service saw many refills on plates.

Students Lampi, Theisen, and Sanders continue the above discussion with Rev. Baty.

Betty Chandler and Rev. Baty look over pamphlets from other schools of religion throughout the country.

Religion can become a forceful realistic part of life when properly understood and practiced, students learn in the workshop classes.

Rev. Charles Johnson, pastor for student affairs, enters the church with Thelma Lovdahl and Wilma Oksendahl for a Sunday night meeting.

Lutheran Students Association

Religion can be fun! Members of the Lutheran Student Association try to apply religion to their daily lives and have fun doing it. On Sunday evenings there are profitable discussions, recreation, and social gatherings over a supper table. In spring and fall quarters there are picnics and hikes up Pattee Canyon. Easter morning there is a big breakfast.

During spring vacation everybody roughed it at Flathead Lake—got away from school, breathed fresh air, ate barrels of food, and entered into serious discussions. In winter quarter Betty Garton, national field secretary, visited three days with the group, binding it closer together with the other Montana units, Bozeman and Havre.

St. Paul's Lutheran church

Games are part of the evening's program. Noreen Ingle swats back a ping pong ball to Jean Lovteeg and Curtis Stadstad.

All meetings end around a gay, informal table of food and friendly conversation.

Community Concerts

Tasting the cultural side of life and dipping into the "purer" arts of Bach, Haydn, Brahms, Schubert, and Mozart gave students a happier outlook on the Community Concert this year. World-known artists and varied, well prepared programs convinced even the most doubting that the concerts were worth attending.

Gracing the Student Union stage this season were: William Primrose, who stayed over an extra day to talk to interested music students; Adolf Busch and his Little Symphony, which brought a pleasant touch of "Old World" artistry to the audience; Alexander Kipnis, bass-baritone whose vocal interpretations and personality captivated the audience; and Artur Schnabel, whose performance lived up to expectations.

Eugene Istomin, brilliant young pianist, displayed an artistic temperament and impressive talent which drew appreciation from the audience.

Even off-stage the pleasing, amiable personalities of Alexander Kipnis and his colleagues: Wolfgang Boss, famous music fans: L. to r. Kipnis, John Lester, Boss, Lester, John Crowder, and June Sanders.

Prof. Stanley M. Toel smiles warmly over something William Phares has just told him.

Alexander Kipnis, Metropolitan Music Institute.

Artur Schnabel, World Famous Pianist.

The old time barbership quartet is revived when Ben Stone, Emerson Stone, Marvin Porter, and Gil Porter combine a lot of mellow harmony.

500 Club

Five hundred Club boys and miscellaneous men about the campus gather in the living room for a noisy, free-for-all ball session.

"Hark the herald angels sing." The faces may not be "angelic" but the old Yuletide spirit is there as Russ Corovski, Bill Hinrichs, Dick Jones, Bill Fisher, Wiley Welch, Dave Street, Bernie Holman, Jack Knepper, Anne Jensen, Ted Greely, Vern Fisher, and Dick Lavine give with the Christmas cards.

Bill Hinrichs hits the hay for a good snooze.

Vern Fisher and Wiley Welch shown in front of the yellow mansion of the new extant 500 Club, 500 University.

Bob Tucker worked up on the classroom stuff.

Civilian men, finding fraternities a closed shop proposition for the duration, this fall moved lock, stock and barrel into the Phi Delta house and established themselves as the 500 Club, a semi-organized living group. Fraternity bonds temporarily forgotten, independents and ex-fraternity men of all denominations lived in comparative peace and agreement. Come re-opening of pledging, the Phi Delta reclaimed the house, pledging with it a strong 500 Club contingent. Others returned to their old stamping grounds or donned the ribbons of one of the other Greek letter groups.

Fish prepares to settle for the evening.

Ted Greely yawns and tumbles in for his beauty sleep.

Jerry Lester squints in the early morning dawn.

Hall president Elaine Hoover has tea with Mrs. Gordon in the house mother's quarters of New Hall.

Women's Cooperative House

Housemother Mrs. Laura Christiani and president Betty Chandler discuss the situation. The cat too is cooperative.

Officers sprawl on the stairs. Coop house officers are Janet Reinertson, secretary; Lois Sanders, treasurer; Betty Chandler, president; Leona Lampa; and Mildred Hodge, exchange managers.

Janet Reinertson turns the midnight oil and pours over the academic side.

Betty June Smith, Elaine Rieger, Mildred Hunter, Lois Woods, Betty Chandler and Emma Lou Kainer take life easy for a moment or two.

"My mamma done told me." The coop trio, Leona Lampa, Janet Reinertson, and June Sanders croon in close harmony.

Eva LaPine, Jean MacGregor, and Frances Taylor draw KP as their part of the daily chores.

Morpha Hunter pressed kick basketball into service as she struggles with the added socks. Lois Sanders wears the headlines. Frances Sanders revives the ancient female art of needlecraft.

Home and hearth and coop Betty Chandler, Lois Woods, Elaine Rieger, Frances Taylor, Eva LaPine, Lois Sanders, Emma Lou Kainer, Jean MacGregor, Mildred Hodge, Betty June Smith, and Morpha Hunter sharing after dinner.

Pan-Hellenic

Pan-Hellenic council, made up of two representatives of each house, sits judgment on all sorority activity; decides on rushing rules and regulations; chooses the slate of Greek women's political candidates; struggles to be impartial. Last spring Pan-Hellenic sponsored an evening's all-sorority discussion, covering all phases of Greek life as well as suggestions for the future. This year the council set about to revise an old bone of contention, the rather indefinite Pan-Hellenic laws and by-laws. Revision may help avoid many a stormy session in providing consistent definitions and rulings on infringements.

The rotating presidency of Pan-Hellenic this year fell to the Delta Gamma, who named Jean Plunk to the office. Presiding with poise and dignity, it was Jean's job to quell occasional outbreaks and act as liaison agent between the dean of women, alums, Pan-Hel and the campus group.

Lois Scholer, Shirley Brown, Elvett Allen, Jean Barker, Judy Brown, June Selvie, Frances Morgan, Mrs. Milne, Alice Marie Unsted, Betty Green, Mariann Alexander peer over the groupbook and resumes.

In order that pledges may properly appreciate the honor most to be bestowed upon them as sisters in the bond of the Alpha Chi pledges are put through inspection week paces. Shirley Brown does her version of Joshua at the battle of Jericho. Pat Peterson and Betty Jean Russell combine talents vocally, barbershop fashion. "Out damn spot!" Elvett Allen revived Lady MacBeth's unhappy spirit. And a quartet of tragic Juliet, Alice Marie Unsted, Aileen Redden, Vivian Vick, Shirley Brown, play the taleant scene.

The limelight's on Marion Mitchell as bored wives still yawns and about amateur remarks.

RESTFUL ROOMS

Have you noticed how the first time people do all a hotel room is just the first to see how it looks? Well, when they are in the Finlen, they are much pleased and surprised for these beds are made to be kept in . . . first rate rest yet more. You just know they are the best for rest.

COFFEE COUNTER

Immaculately clean, The Coffee Counter is justly popular. Here you are served breakfast, lunch, dinner and between meal snacks. This service is the usual Finlen service . . . expert and swift. Just across the hall is the Coffee Shop. Open only for breakfast and luncheon, the Shop is the favorite of many Butte business men and women.

COPPER BOWL

The luxurious Copper Bowl, most distinctive restaurant and cocktail lounge in Montana only serves delicious luncheons and dinners but during and afterwards skilled bartenders customarily serve your drinks just as you like them. One of the outstanding attractions in the Copper Bowl, can be seen in the picture. Giant murals showing Montana's major industries line the walls.

More so the name Hotel Finlen brings back memories to almost every alumni for before the War it was headquarters for a Gassy Bobcat named. Since then it has maintained its popularity. Students know its friendliness . . . its comfort . . . its reasonable rates. It is practically a maxim . . . I'll meet you at the Finlen.

MAX DEAN,

Montana will be glad to help you. Write to him for positive news the best time you want to Butte.

Interfraternity

Interfraternity council played Phoenix this year to rise from the ashes to which it had been doomed by 1943's service-bound representatives, who voted a closed season on rushing and pledging for the duration. Nationals and alumni failing to see things that way pressed the issue and after several serious sessions voted to re-open fraternity activities, deciding that however small groups might be, some tie was necessary to maintain the continuity of MSU chapters.

After a mad rush season of pledging and breaking of pledges, fraternity men found their groove and settled down to comparative peace and calm under the direction of SAE Interfraternity Council President Don Paddock.

Now open for business are Phi Delta Theta, Sigma Alpha Epsilon, Sigma Chi, Sigma Nu, and Theta Chi.

Don Paddock, president

Once again the great light possesses the domain of Minerva's home on the corner of Gaither and University. And again will doubtless receive the latest SAE money bag. President Don Paddock keeps the team looking the line.

Johnny Bellucci, Jack Koettler, and Don Gray gather Helen Trusses, Betty Lacey, and Ginny Frost around the fireside for a hangup conversation.

Bridge hands apart on the floor, but Bob Switzer and Gomer Settee are much too engrossed to care, while Johnny Bellucci, by the referee, whistles a heavy tune, and Helen Trusses croons through SAE lore. Chaperon, Sr. Eustacia, Paula Schneider, and Bill Fells concentrate on the game.

Glen Kell, Audrey Eder, Dick Samuel, and Paula Schaller lunch on the steps.

Bertha McKee sends the flashlight to Bill Hensch's amusement. Barbara Schaller and Bill Feller seem unimpressed, and Jerry Hensch explains something to Paula Schneider.

Dick Lavine quizzically lifts an eyebrow at Dot Lacey; Bob Blue's southern drawl is smiled for the moment as Allen Dean chatters on.

Marjorie Howard looks just a little alarmed as Jim Moyes downs another cake.

Dick Lavine and Don Gray lead Dot Lamey and Orney Puck in a fun dance routine for a lot of refreshment.

Behind-the-eight-ball boys Nick Cerovski, Joe Gibney, and Dave Young relax in the basement recreation room.

Bob Moy, Nick Cerovski, Bob Tucker, George Savage, Dave Young, and Nick Tucker look appropriately wise and earnest pointing the text.

Tuck beats it out and Arnie Berger, Babe Young, Vern Fisher, Max French, George Savage, Dick Boese, and Bob May do a barbershop arrangement of "I met a girl one day."

Fish scratches his head in indecision and the ball season goes on as Bob May, Dick Boese, Arnie Berger, Babe Young, Bob Tucker, Max French, George Savage, Nick Celovski, and Jerry Lester add their two-bits' worth.

"Here's a good T. Dorsey." Dick Boese identifies a platter; Arnie Berger heads to the machine; Max French selects mud diamonds, and Bob May settles down to hear sweeter strains.

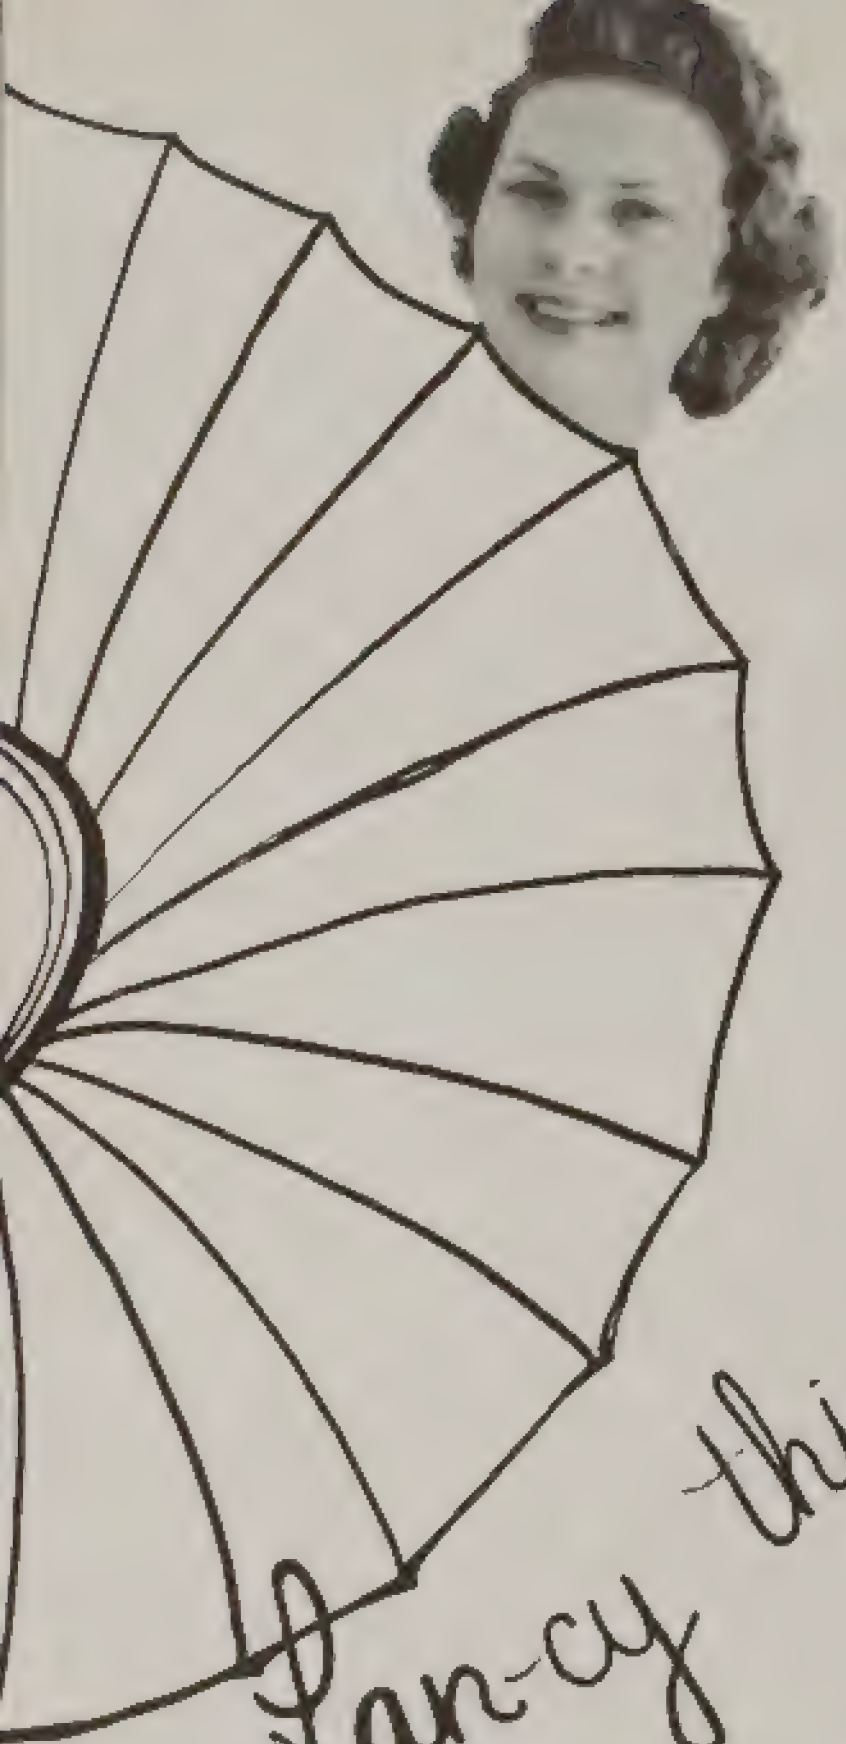

Dick Boese returns a nasty one across the net as the brothers amuse themselves in the basement recreation room.

"Watcha doin' tonight, honey? I'll be over in a few minutes." Arnie Berger puts a PTO on line up a last minute date with a smooth talk. Max French and Dick Boese attempt to get the lockdown.

Head Majorette Phyllis Biddle

All the pleasure's not just in the game, these eyelid cuties prove at half-time. Baton twirling, flag drills, and other tricks of the trade win whistles and oh's from the audience. From left to right, around the Grizzly "M" are Phyllis Biddle, Ellen Meier, Doris Armstrong, Gloria Meehan, Anna Lee Kern, Eloise Van der Biesen, and Joyce Shone.

Basketball

Bugs Dohlborg, Grizzly hoop coach '37 to '42, is back on the job after two years in the army. After serving as an athletic director at Fort Lawton, Washington, Bugs returned to the campus in August of '44. In spite of the wartime shortage of team material Bugs has plugged along against odds that discourage even the most optimistic. But there's always another season. Graduate manager Kirk Bradley, financial genius of the athletic program, takes time out to chat with daughter Marion and Paula Giffin. Leoline MacKenzie and Harriet Dillavou. Anne Reese is seen over his right shoulder at her familiar place in the ticket booth. Dean Jesse and wife are in their traditional front row bleacher spot. He's not missed an athletic contest in the last thirty-three years. Some reward! At the beginning of the second half ceremony, cheerleader Terri Larson organizes the din. Coach Dohlborg drives his team an encouraging pat and sends it back into the hay.

"C'Mon Grizzlies!" Audrey Eder, left; Latana, Ruth, Corovski, and Kay Morris show a precision parade rally in a deep slumped (sunny) snow. (Theaterman Lee Morrison and Suzanne Burke work a hard shot from Broadway). . . . Lee Morrison and Suzanne Burke perform Phyllis Kahan's swings from a complicated dog-twisting routine. Spectators and cheerleaders give the game from the sidelines, usually and mentally.

Sigma Alpha Epsilon, after dropping only two games during the season, prevented a tie with the Phi Delta Thetas by dropping the Independents 24-22 in the last game of the season. Kirby high point man, led the scoring squad around the season with a total of 39 points. The second two all-rounders for the SAEs were Koster, 24, and Dreckell, 22, who helped bring the season's total to 134 points.

L. to R. back row: McGarry, N. Gonski, Savage, R. Gonski, Young, Fisher, Crumley; front row: McDonald, Berger, Tucker, Ryan, May. Not pictured—Greene

The scrappy Phi Delta Thetas came up the number one place in the midway by losing the last two games to the Sigma Eps and Sigma Nats. Their total number of fan wins and three losses placed them in second place. Their last four men, Savage (22), Young (24) and Gonski (22) together with their consistently dominating performance, raised their total score to 168 points for the season.

L. to R. back row: Lanthorn; front row: Gonski, Edwin, Nemes, Houser. Not pictured—Barnett, Berg, Gonski, May

The Independents, after winning the first game of the midway and losing the last game, thought to show a first place tie with the Sigma Eps with three wins and four losses. The Independent completed season 146 points for the season with Nemes (22), Barnett (24), and Lanthorn (22) leading high point list.

Sigma Nu tied for third place with the Independents after three wins and two losses during the season. Their final tie for last position was 31.4 points with best points men being Keen (25), Trask (27), and Tatumson (21).

L. to r. back row: Tatumson, Oster, front row: Trask, Darity, Goss, Russell. Not pictured—Stall, Mun, Middle, Kern.

Sigma Chi, after defeating three opponents because of a late start, were last placed in the league with one win and one loss. This loss against teams finished the Psi Sigma out of the league with them and was last place in total as because the other students who joined were for the Sigma Chi were from Psi, Chi (21), and Gamma (21), who added them the season's total of 63 points.

In Memoriam

Dean Stone unravels an old Indian tale at the annual Stone Night picnic. His old friend Burly Miller listens over a pack of cigarettes.

Dean A. L. Stone at work in his new pine-paneled office.

The "Stone Age" of Journalism on the campus is ended. Back in 1914 a vigorous-minded, well-known journalist left the editorship of the "Missoulian," crossed to the south side of Higgins Avenue bridge to take over the tremendous task of starting a journalism school on the MSU campus. During the 28 years as its dean, A. L. Stone became known as the "grand old man of journalism," establishing an enviable reputation for himself and the school.

After being kicked around from building to building, after facing Hellgate blizzards in classes set up in tents, after nursing the journalism proteges and the Kaimin in "The Shack," the Dean realized his dream of a modern building housing an efficient pressroom, auditorium, classes, historic museum, library, photo lab, and offices.

But the Dean's record lay not so much in his material achievements as it did in his own personality. He inspired students by his example rather than by his teaching. His amiable manner belied his ability to fight for the things he believed in. It was a privilege to work with him and under him. He became recognized for his wealth of Indian legends, Montana history, and knowledge of words. Even after he retired his advice and philosophy on life were sought out.

When the Dean died last March 19, the "Stone Age" of Journalism ended, but its influence lives on.

The journalism school lost another good man when Howard Hazelbaker died January 4th after a long illness during the preceding fall. Students missed him in the rural journalism class, missed his informal between-classes chats about Montana papers. But state editors and publishers may have missed the tall, lanky, serious young man even more because of the services he gave them as secretary of the Montana State Press Association. In this work he unified the weekly papers, and made advertising easier for them with his "Package Plan." On his own merits as a newspaper man, he established a fine record on his Ronan paper. His interests in Montana even extended to his active participation in politics. Last fall, he was a candidate for Montana Secretary of State.

Since his death, his wife is carrying on his state press activities and is bringing up their two young daughters.

CAST

Warren Winter and one of the early Winters. In real life Edison Spriggs did the portrait of his stage ancestor.

Nephew Dave tells Aunt Cen that her guess is up, that he's found the oppressing spirit.

"Cup of Fury" proved something different in the line of drama. MSU tested one version of the manuscript play, which may appear in the near future on Broadway, the Seattle tryout theater another. Montana's version of the tense psychological ends with Aunt Cecily climaxing her series of tyrannies with an attempt at the beauty of forthright Joan, as she sees her family freed from her dominance.

Scenes from the drama of a strong woman's reign of terror. Dear, sweet Aunt Cecily snugly soaks up attention and insidiously spreads distrust and unhappiness in the Winter family. Uncle Charles and Aunt Martha reminisce about a happy Christmas when father was alive and Dave wonders what's wrong between Joan and Warren. Christine tells Roger she is leaving him and Joan backs her up, to Warren's annoyance. All's right with the world as Aunt Cecily's work is undone and her family learns of her treacheries. Aunt Cecily merely sniffs at their ingratitude.

Paul Bischoff heads the student union executive committee which decides policy and turns the follow-through over to Cyrle. "The Boss" uses his charismatic personality here and in the classroom.

Anne Reese juggles the figures, cuts through the red tape of union business office financial matters.

Bob Morin keeps the union open till students are ready to call it a day. As night clerk he serves as constant "information please" authority and general roadblock.

Jean Elliot, assistant night clerk in the business office, meets the demands of the impatient mob, keeps tabs of who's where and why.

Montana Study

Adopted baby of the Rockefeller foundation, the Montana Study has still moved to headquarters on the campus in Great Hall. Joseph Kinsey Howard of "Montana High, Wide and Handsome" devoted to and not returned to assist himself to definite appointment while Dr. Paul Meadows of Northwestern and Dr. Baker Brownell settled themselves on exchange professors.

Education and planning for postwar employment are the two most important problems confronting Montana and the nation. Aside from progress of the war, they have provided the biggest "stories" for the newspaper man or writer. And it has been my unique privilege to participate—beyond the mere function of reporting—in the development on this campus of an educational service for Montanans which exemplifies the American ideal of the University—education for all of the people.

Frederick Jackson Turner wrote, in The Frontier in American History:

"Those who investigate and teach within the University walls must respond to the injunction of the Church, 'Suscipe corda'—lift up the heart to high thinking and impartial search for the unsullied truth in the interests of all the people; this is the holy goal of the Universities."

Responsibility to that ideal and to this University does not end with graduation. In the interests of all the people the search for truth in Montana must be continued by the disciplined mind.

I. Brown and H. Sugrue start St. Pat's day off right by "Taking the L out of Kelley."

Sweethearts Joe Gibney and Betty Schneider plus Bob Tucker's son "Poppy Mackay," gave it a sparkle and made it popular on the campus.

Emcee Joe Gibney cracked corny jokes for his tavern patrons while they lustily cheered him and made free use of him.

Beverly Pries sang about her love for dear "Mickey" May.

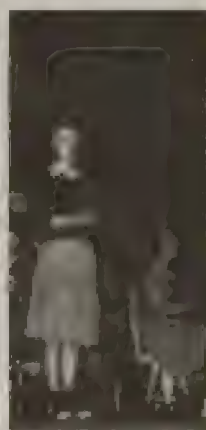

The Irish colleens L. Linspi, J. Reinhardt, and J. Sanders gave a scintillating interpretation of the "Fisherman's Daughter."

"Who Threw the Overalls in Mrs. Murphy's Chowder?" about Russ Corovski, Annie Berger, and Vera Fisher. V. Doyle tenderly sang about her "Daddy Boy."

The Haller twins did an Irish jig to get their "Daddy" to leave the bar and come home.

"My Wild Irish Rose" gave the grand finale a flourishing ending. Lovers Bob "Mickey" Moy and Beverly Pries held each other for dear life; Joe Gibney, June Sanders, and Bob Tucker sing alone; Frank McCarty and Al Wilkinson bury the hatchet; and Tannis Brown, Helen Sugrue, and Don Ryan swing it.

The Phoenix

The resurrection process begins at home for the young, returned soldiers. The family seated at the dinner table are clockwise: Lee Johnson, Helen Plumb, John Moore, (standing) Helen Robbins, Bob Sear, and Bob Sear (family doctor).

According to an old myth, the Phoenix is bird which is the Sun God, whose every 500 years, out of Anchar in Heliopolis, the city of the Sun God in Egypt, where it burned itself at the altar, and was reborn from its ashes young and beautiful again, an emblem of immortality and resurrection. Based on this idea, Grant Redford wrote a play about a crippled, dedicated soldier who was forced out of his own machine to return and fight, now around the world.

Through the concerted efforts of Dr. H. H. Morton, the Manuscript directed by Roy L. West Jr. wrote "The Phoenix" as first produced in the Student Union Theater last spring. During the summer the script was rewritten for production at the North-Front Theater. Last October George, leader of the script group, took the play to New York with the writer and his assistant, the writer managed and the film captured by "Grant Victory". From the New York office of the Student Theater commented it for production and a future picture. Plans are still in a tentative state. Locally, the campus Authors Club expressed approval of it winter quarter.

The hero tries to drown his sorrows at the bar and Patricia Barbara Hill listens in on the conversation of Arnold Berger, Ed Shubert, and Jack Day.

RED CROSS

The coke store was filled to flowing, but undrunked revelers lined up the Student Union to talk over the gossip in "Campus Ravings." take life easy.

Major Helkes and the CTD came out appropriately to lend a hand.

High Court judges mete out punishment to unwitting culprits, blare out the crime, and conduct court all at the same time.

Aber Day

Aber Day! What sweeter words can be heard spring quarter?

Take a promising day in April (nobody knows when); add a ringing call from the Main Hall bell at 7 a. m.; combine with dormitory raids by Spurs and "M" club men; mix well with a confusion of "Campus Ravings," electioneering for the "Big Four" candidates, student-faculty cleanup squads, a noisy noon picnic, coke sessions in the student store (when somebody started a good old-fashioned song fest), an afternoon High Court, and a rousing Gold Room mixer—there you have a vague idea of last year's Aber Day.

"Daddy" William Aber may not have recognized many of the new attractions, but the idea is the same—to beautify and clean University grounds with the cooperative efforts of students and faculty members.

The audience was fascinated by the proceedings, but you never could tell who would be next!

Sometimes the results were "electrifying," otherwise the victim got a "both."

Tom Dully aided by the "M" club argues over punishment for Karna Johnson—"stepping out" somebody said.

How some persons can still grin in spite of it all, is beyond me . . .

Losing an election bet is mild compared to this.

O-o-o-h! That dunking was cold!

Dr. Leaphart and Major Miseric proudly display the coveted silver trophy award.

All important Senior Week activities begin with Awards convocation, the last convocation of the year, when students are honored with scholarships, recognition for work well done, memberships in honoraries, and school accomplishments are noted.

Last spring among the outstanding awards was the William Randolph Hearst trophy awarded to the University rifle team competing in the Ninth Service command tournament. Among the eight western states competing in the Hearst tournament—Montana, Idaho, Washington, Oregon, California, Utah, Nevada, and Arizona—the U gained first place.

For the rest of the week seniors busied themselves at a banquet for their parents; observed services together at Baccalaureate; found honor and glory at Commencement; and tasted the first thrill of being MSU alumni at the Commencement reception.

Senior Songstress Eileen Murphy belted out her melodious tune at the final S. O. S.

Spring S. O. S.s are the most wonderful of all and filled with surprises for newly tapped Spurs. Mentor Board members give students their first chance to meet recently elected MSU officers.

"We Mentor Boards salute you," said twelve new ones who worked with their seniors into the senior women's bonanza.

Traditions chairman Eileen Plumb introduces the senior talent group into Tradition's Spirit.

Surrounded by its pages by 1944 Sentinels, last year's editor Lucienne Gifford undertakes a most arduous task—selection of winners.

The graduation march begins as the faculty files out of the Student Union entrance.

Seniors file in to start the faculty march the last grand march.

The class of '44 files across the campus to Sunday's Baccalaureate service.

Envious underclassmen look on as the Seniors march on to get their diplomas, four years of study completed.

Major Misovic leads the way into the Student Union Theater where the baccalaureate service will be held.

Publishing the more serious efforts of the rejection-slip-crowd of budding young authors, the Mountaineer, thanks to the persuasive art of Editor Jane Jeffers, this year stepped out in a new printed format. Left, Mandi Luebben, faculty advisor John Moore, Janie Jeffers, and Aggie Regan whip page proofs into shape. Below, Mr. Moore, Curtis Stadstad, and Maggie Duncan ponder critically over submitted manuscripts.

A bright future ahead

Many letters have been recently are filled with remembrances of the future. We had after recently from Arnold.

Arnold would graduate last hadn't needed long help fight a war. Brown doesn't had the spring Germany now from the universe long distance letter.

"I think back on a Seattle was a something we fresh the Spurs and the F cross and the Spurt.

"I think of Dean S. Ray, wisdom-packed, he nights we used to until the police came of Shing to the tune of 'Genevieve' anying campus clean-up (plus).

"But don't misunderstand. Going back is the plan. I do want to go. There will be a lot of other men who had to leave school who will be back, and who will be just as old and just as kind of the days that were as I am. So things can't look too black. Now I long for the day when I can walk down University avenue again and find things back as they were before."

It fills us with pride to know how much this is a His men at war and how eager they are for advancement and welfare. They graduate from Montana State tribute we can ask.

Letters to the editor . . .

Dear Students:

So you like the Wednesday afternoon coffee hours?

Now that a lot of people are freed on that point, several of us are perhaps thinking up some new ideas to keep student-faculty relations a little closer. Last Wednesday Dr. Brownman made a suggestion to me, and I'm passing it on:

Why not use the outdoor fireplace built last fall, for more get-togethers? It's hidden behind the natural science building near the women's Gym, but it's just the spot for a late afternoon picnic.

Lionel Barrymore, star of the "Mayor of the Town" heard over CBS on Saturday nights at 8:15 comes of a famous American theatrical family, a brother of Ethel and the late John Barrymore. He is the eldest son of Maurice Barrymore, long famous on the stage, and Georgina Drew Barrymore. Barrymore was born in Philadelphia, Pa., on April 28, 1878.

Lionel Barrymore

His first appearance on the stage was as a crying five-year-old with his parents, and his first adult role on stage was as the footman in "The Road to Ruin" in which his grandmother, Mrs. John Drew, appeared. He also appeared with her on Jan. 1, 1904 in "The Ravels." Lionel's film career commenced in 1909 with the old Biograph company. D. W. Griffith lured him years. His eyes are penetrat steel-gray and his eyebrows shaggy. He hates to comb his hair. Lionel is a talented pianist and composed several concertos. The theme used on his "Mayor of Town" program was written him.

His outstanding radio role that of Scrooge in the dramatization of Dickens' "Christmas Carol" an outstanding Yuletide "hit" for the listening audience of nation.

Sociology majors travel to Hamilton to give panel

A "contingent" of sociology majors journeyed to Hamilton Tuesday evening to present a panel discussion at the monthly meeting of the American Association University Women.

On the panel were Mrs. J. Miloglav, Irene Carter and Ed Nicol, Missoula; Margaret Gerhardt, Anaconda, and Betty Chasler, Arlee. Dr. Catherine Nutville acted as coordinator. All the girls are from Dr. Nuttall's Field Work in Sociology class "Education for Tomorrow" their subject. The discussion covered the vocational, mental, emotional needs of the "whole" individual as a member of society.

With J-school males sharing the fate of Lucky Strike green, the weaker sex occupies for the second year the inner sanctums formerly sacred to the male of the species. Despite dire masculine predictions, the gals have proved proficient behind the desks formerly reserved for bass-voiced barking executives. The Kaimin has prospered under gentle hands; advertising has swung on the upward curve and the editorial policy is still 100% forthright and lusty. Returning heroes may find a battle in the offing if they attempt evacuation of the feminine front guard.

The Sentinel Staff

Back in the now-dim days of fall quarter, the student body got through kicking around the question of "Who shall be Sentinel editor?" and came up with their choice of Ginny Sikonia. Aided by Alice Drum, business manager, and Bob Blair, ad manager, the Sentinel received an injection of life; suddenly burst forth with a new record for ad sales, and intrigued the student body.

Amazing was the magnificent job done by petite Ginny. Faced with the task of taking her own pictures, managing a big staff, and seeking printing contracts, she somehow got the book out by deadline—without a single grey hair. Emerging now and then from the darkroom for an encouraging word to the dogged staff, was Cyrile Van Duser, advisor. She got your picture into this book.

Campus History

On February 17, 1891, the Legislature gave birth to the University as proud Montanians heaved a sigh and settled back in their chairs to watch the "kid" grow up.

Under the presidency of Dr. O. J. Cross the school thrived. By the end of the year it could boast a three-story brick building on the southwest side of town, where the Willard school now stands, consisting of the departments of mathematics, languages, history, physical sciences, mechanical engineering and assaying, as well as a 1,360 volume library.

Officially opening September 10, 1895, University enrollment the first day totaled about fifty students but grew by the end of the year to some one hundred and thirty-five, two-thirds of whom were enrolled in the preparatory division to clear up high school deficiencies.

One year after the official opening, the University had outgrown its baby clothes and had to be moved to a new setting at the base of Mt. Sentinel, on land donated to the school by the Higgins estate and the Missoula Land Company.

In 1897 a six-year-old institution of higher learning needed recreation. A University football team was formed to meet the demand. Minor hardships that season were the nearness of the field to the Missoula river and a shortage of team members, which necessitated the coach's playing on the team at odd intervals.

In February of 1897 the Legislature realized that the demands of its growing child were increasing and appropriated a $100,000 allowance in a bond issue for the erection of two buildings on the campus, Mann Hall and Old Science Hall, returned this year to house the language department.

Miss Elsie Knowles and Mrs. Ella Hirt, Glenn in 1898 were the first graduates of the now-prosperous state school. Miss Knowles later returned to her alma mater as a teacher.

An essay and story magazine, the Krumm in 1899 was the outlet for the budding creative spirit of a University, now eight years old. By 1914 the magazine had metamorphosed and developed into a twice-weekly newspaper.

Nineteen hundred and two found the Legislature in a benevolent mood and $40,000 in bonds was allowed for the construction of a women's dormitory, new Craig Hall, and a gymnasium. The same year provisions were made for a football and track field duly christened Montana field.

Coach Conkover and Professors Elrod and Rowe put their heads together in the spring of 1904 to conceive a plan for a University-sponsored interscholastic meet and declamation contest, which twenty schools entered that year. Since the war, interscholastic has been dropped in cooperation with the Office of Defense Transportation.

Then came one of our oldest and most beautiful traditions, Singing on the Steps. Professor Sibley created this as a pep rally before athletic contests. Silent Sentinel was founded in the spring of 1904 by President Oscar I. Craig and Professor Sibley. It was a men's honorary organization, the members being chosen for their services to the University.

In 1906 the students, feeling themselves too large a group for hit-or-miss student government banded together to organize as the Associated Students of the University of Montana and elected student body officers.

On February 17, 1906, the first Charter Day was observed.

By 1908 high school standards had been raised sufficiently to allow the discontinuation of the preparatory department and the University felt itself of age.

A stern parent, the Legislature in 1910 decided to cut the millage tax to 1½ mills as some assessments had reached the $300,000,000 mark, the point early agreed upon as the total at which the millage tax would be cut. Students organizing themselves into publicity groups, entered on a statewide letter-writing campaign and the next general election saw the millage tax assessment left at 2 mills until assets of the state were valued at $800,000,000.

In the spring of 1910 graduating seniors marched up the slope of Sentinel to build a wooden M on the hill. Unable to stand up against Hellgate winds, it was later replaced by a whitewashed M of stones. The same graduating class erected the senior bench at the west end of the oval.

From 1911 to 1914 the Schools of Law, Commerce, Forestry, and Journalism were established in that order. The School of Journalism as the "school in tents" received so much publicity in newspapers of the nation, that the Legislature was forced to make provisions for its housing and walled up a bicycle shed at the northwest corner of Main Hall to quarter the department.

A general campus cleanup in May of 1915 proved so successful that students determined to institute it as an annual event, naming the day for "Daddy" Aber of the classical language department. "Daddy" Aber took particular pride in the appearance of the campus and many times saw to the planting of trees and hedges. A group of fir trees at the northwest corner of the campus was named Aber grove as a lasting memorial to him.

By 1917 students on the campus were following with interest the progress of World War I in Europe and voted in a campus election to make military drill compulsory for male students. As during this war, students turned out to help save apple and potato crops of Western Montana. When war was declared by the United States, provisions were made for students to enlist in a Students Army Training Corps and remain on the campus. They were quartered in wooden barracks, Simpkins and Cook Halls, named for the first University casualties. They now house the Little Theater and the Nursery school. Aber Day of 1919 was dedicated to the planting of a row of thirty-one trees in honor of University men killed in the war. In the same year, Montana field was renamed in honor Paul Logan Donohew.

In 1920, $600,000 was appropriated by a bond issue for a new library and heating plant. A million dollars was appropriated the next year for new buildings and repairs to old ones. The Library, Gymnasium, Heating plant, Forestry building, North Hall, and South Hall were built in that order.

Bearpaws and Tanon, now Tanacet Spur, appeared on the campus as sophomore laboratories in 1922 and 1923.

Since 1922 the Student Union, Chemistry, Pharmacy, Forestry, Journalism buildings and New Hall have been added to the campus. The school has grown and expanded.

After endless investigating committees—Minnes, Navy, Army, Air Corps, etc.—the Army Air Corps permanent party arrived on the campus the last week of February, 1942, to set up a college training program. Early in March, a thousand cadets from all over the world arrived to attend Montana State University. Until July 1, 1944, a new squadron arrived each month as one left us.

The campus, now a military post, took on a new air and we were faced with regulations and rules, foreign to our way of doing things. The Student Union was turned by the students to the exclusive use of the cadets for one hour each day. The old Central Board room was converted into a barber shop and the Silver room into a game room. The Sentinel took temporary headquarters in the Journalism school so that the cadets might have this office to use as a recreational center.

Many of the University instructors gave either half-time or full time to teaching the army specialized program. Came the day of squadron shows, squadron dances, squadron graduations, Sunday parades, unique songs by marching men. The men were housed in all the dormitories so that University women, by necessity, moved into fraternity houses, closed by the war, and sororities or private homes. New publications—The Grenlin, a semi-weekly paper, and the Take-Off, cadet annual published for each graduating squadron, made their appearance on the campus.

During this time student body male enrollment dropped to a new low with sixty-three civilian men registered.

Four days after the departure of the Air Corps, a new program—the Army Specialized Training Reserve Program—hit the campus July 4, 1944.

Despite the Army on the campus, the ordinary wartime restrictions, shortage of men, abandoned traditions, fewer sports, college life prospered when school started in the fall of 1944.

Balloted freshmen were greeted by the traditional freshman week, with its maze of meetings, examinations, physicals, speeches, demonstrations, parties, election, and most confusing of all, the registration merry-go-round. At the end of the week the whitewashing of the M and the mixer relieved the fitters and tensions of the incoming fresh.

Temporary freshmen officers, elected the first week served for a month. A political war developed when the Carbin Hall machine arose to successfully oppose reelection of the temporary officers. Elections were called and postponed several times because of the uncertainty of cadet rights. After a confusing two weeks in which the status of cadets was clarified, it was agreed that they had regular young rights. Civil war on the campus was averted when a co-presidency was thrust upon by the army and civilian students.

A platform of two unsuccessful office seekers promised: equitable distribution of water; larger and better parties; more often; hay for hayrides; dancing in the dark; overstuffed chairs in all lecture classes; later hours for all dorms and houses; ceiling prices on cokes, lollypops, and telephone calls; elimination of machine politics from the campus failed to impress the voters.

Sam Phillips, University and James Moyes, ASTRP, were elected co-presidents. New officers were elected when Phillips left for the Navy and Moyes was removed by the Ninth Service Command.

In October excitement reigned high as cupward commander of the ASTRP initiated for demon-gh Halloween mads with a midnight march on all three women's halls, complete with fire and drum and assy custards.

Holding fast to old traditions, the Spurs again sponsored Sam Hawkins, girl-chases-boy often.

And in December the traditional Messiah preceded fall quarter finals.

January 4, 1945, the journalism school lost a valuable friend and counselor with the death of Howard Hazelbaker, Montana Press Association representative and faculty member.

The ASTRP remained with us until January 6, 1945, when the remaining seventeen-year-olds were transferred to Stanford University because of a concentration of the program.

The campus settled back to a degree of normalcy again.

Along towards the middle of January the faculty curriculum committee re-opened its session, meeting later on in the quarter with members of the special student-faculty relationship groups in order to receive student views.

Friday, January 9, 1945, Bertha strayed from the halls of the forestry building and Foresters heaped bitter accusations on the lawyers who refused to make public statement.

January 27, 1945, journalism school conspirators laughed long and loud as the much publicized I. Barkley Rhoads was unmasked as a figment of Andy Cogswell's imagination, dreamed up to inspire an increase of school spirit in journalism.

Newman Club members put on a bang-up all-school mixer in January with their Mardi Gras.

Looking at national economics, students heard a discussion by members of their own group at the proposed Missouri Valley Authority at the February 23, 1945, convo and the echoes have not yet died.

March saw the initiation of a general faculty-student get-together with Wednesday afternoon coffee hours. Profs and students met to talk over the world in general.

Friday before St. Patrick's day, Newman Club put on another big affair with its unique Irishmen's convo.

Dean Emeritus A. L. Stone's death took from the journalism school one of the beloved ones with the old "shack" days.

Spring came. With it the seniors took over in a last flash of glory before walking off with diplomas. Even though facing a war-torn world, their confidence in the future is still as strong as ever.

It is hoped that by the time this book appears on the campus, Main Hall hall will have posted in victory over the defeat of the German side of the Axis powers.

This annual was dedicated to Memories and that is the purpose I hope it fulfills . . . a book which you may pick up and reminisce through . . . a book that will bring back poignant memories of one year of your college life at Montana State University. Whether or not this has been achieved, I leave up to you.

A million thanks . . . to CYRILE VAN DUSER for endless hours spent in tedious work and consoling advice . . . to LORRAINE GRIFFITH who was always there with a helping hand when the going was the toughest . . . to LEE JELLISON who spent hours pasting and alphabetizing class and sorority pictures . . . to MANDI LUEBBEN who worked untiringly when stacks and stacks of pages requiring copy were laid by her typewriter . . . to ALICE DRUM who made ad sales boom to a top mark . . . to BOB BLAIR who came forth with scores of unique ad layouts . . . to JO ANN BLAIR who worked diligently on contracts . . . to CARLIN OLSEN who did a thorough job of all that was asked of her . . . to LORRAINE THOMPSON for her splendid art work on ads and hand lettered pages . . . to LOIS PAT NELSON and WILMA OKSEND AHL who spent unnumbered hours on the card file in preparation for the final index . . . to ROGER BARTON who drew so many clever ad pictures . . . to PEGGY CROSSEN, ELAINE JOHNSON, and BETTY HENRY who compiled a very complete future book . . . to MAX SUGG who wrote sports copy . . . to all the rest of my staff for all their cooperation and hours spent.

A thank you . . . to the TRIBUNE PRINTING AND SUPPLY COMPANY for their cooperation in printing this annual . . . to MR. ELLIS who was so helpful with formal pictures . . . to LIFE magazine for permission to use the Life format . . . to DODD, MEAD & COMPANY for permission to use Robert Service's poem, "Young Fellow My Lad" . . . to THE NORTH AMERICAN PRESS for a fine cover job . . . to K. D. SWAN for the cover picture.

GINNY
